5.1.1 Insured Event

A claim can be submitted for a matter which is subject to prosecution or under dispute. The claim is under dispute when the grounds or amount of the claim have been expressly challenged.

If two (2) or more persons insured under this Insurance are on the same side in a dispute, criminal case or petition, or if the Insured is/are involved in several disputes, criminal cases or petitions which are based on the same incident, circumstances, juristic act or infringement of rights, or if it is a question of the same or a similar claim, albeit differently based, these constitute one (1) insured event.

5.1.2 The Time of Origin of the Insured Event and the Insurance Period of Validity

The Insurance covers loss or damage that occurs during the validity period of the Insurance.

The insured event has occurred during the validity period of the Insurance if the dispute, claim or charge is based on an incident, circumstances, juristic act or infringement of rights which has occurred during the validity period of the Insurance.

5.1.3 Shared Interest

If a matter concerns an interest essentially other than the own interest of the Insured, or the Insured has a shared interest with other than those persons covered by this insurance to safeguard in the matter, the insurance covers only the proportion of the expenses which can be considered to constitute the Insured Person's part.

5.1.4 Compensable Costs

The Insurance covers the necessary and reasonable legal and litigation expenses arising from an insured event as follows:

5.1.4.1 Litigation and Petition

The costs incurred by the Insured due to the use of a legal representative and the presentation of evidence.

Where a juridical act or a decision made by a certain decision-making body, or in a certain process, is the condition for a dispute to be submitted to a Court for consideration, the expenses incurred are covered as from the time when the matter can be submitted for consideration by a general Court of First Instance.

If the matter has been handled by a court of arbitration, the fee of the arbitrator's possible assistant and the costs calculated according to the number of disputing parties that can be considered to constitute the Insured's share is covered by this Insurance.

5.1.4.2 Criminal Case

As the complainant

The costs incurred by the Insured due to the use of a legal representative and the presentation of evidence, insofar as the trial concerns a claim under private law by the Insured, arising from non-legal costs.

As the defendant

Expenses for the defence of the Insured, unless the prosecution concerns a deliberate act, gross negligence or gross recklessness.

However, compensation for expenses will be paid in arrears in the event that the charges made by the prosecutor have been dismissed by a Court decision insofar as the charges concerned the abovementioned deliberate action, gross negligence or gross carelessness.

If the prosecutor's charges have been dismissed by a Court decision altogether, compensation is not paid. In such a case, the expenses should be claimed from state funds on the basis of Section 9 of the Criminal Procedure Act.

If the Insured is convicted in a Court of Appeal, upon a prosecutor's complaint, of a deliberate action, gross negligence or gross carelessness as mentioned in this Clause, the defence and litigation expenses are not compensated.

5.1.4.3. Appeal to the Supreme Court

If an appeal to the Supreme Court requires permission for an appeal, the costs incurred due to the appeal procedure are covered by the insurance only where the permission to appeal has been granted. This precondition also applies to those matters in which the Supreme Court is the first court of appeal.

The costs incurred due to the use of extraordinary channels of appeal are covered only if the Supreme Court has allowed the appeal or approved the annulment of a court decision or restored the lapsed time limit.

5.2 Amount of Compensation and Its Calculation

The maximum compensation per insured event is the sum insured stated in the Policy Document.

The lawyer's fees and legal costs coverable under the insurance are determined in accordance with the legal instructions on legal costs provided in the Code of Judicial Procedure and the Criminal Procedure Act.

If the court of law has not issued a pronouncement on the lawyer's fee and legal costs, or if an agreement has been reached on the costs or the matter has been settled through admission, the coverable costs are determined taking into consideration the costs usually ordered to be paid or paid in corresponding matters. However, no more than the expenses of the opposing party ordered by the court to be paid by the Insured are compensated, unless the court's decision expressly states that the Insured must incur the expenses partly or totally as his or her loss.

A reasonable fee for the legal representative's work and necessary expenses are compensated. In determining the reasonableness of the fee and expenses, the value of the disputed interest, the difficulty and scope of the matter and the amount and nature of the work performed by the representative are taken into consideration. However, the compensated costs may not exceed the demand for compensation for costs presented by the Insured to his or her opposing party.

If the value of the disputed interest can be measured in money, the insurance compensates, within the limits of the sum insured stated in the Policy Document, no more than twice the disputed amount. If the disputed interest is a payment of a repeated nature, when defining the amount the disputed one-time payment is taken into account no more than tenfold. When determining the amount of the interest, interest payments or lawyer's fees and legal costs shall not be taken into consideration.

If the Insured has collected the legal costs or they have been paid to the

If the opposing party or the Insured has otherwise been able to offset them, the Insured is liable to transfer them to the Insurance Company, including interest, insofar as they must be allocated to the Insurance Company in accordance with the Insurance Terms and Conditions.

If the opposing party has been ordered or has undertaken to pay the Insured compensation for expenses, and this is still unpaid at the time when compensation is paid under the terms of the insurance, the Insured is liable to transfer to the Insurance Company all rights to the said compensation for expenses, up to the amount of compensation paid by the latter.

In the event that the Insured has been obliged to pay part of the expenses themselves, owing to the fact that the expenses exceed the maximum compensation under the Insurance, the Insured is liable to transfer to the Insurance Company the compensation for expenses received from the opposing party to the extent that it exceeds the amount paid by the Insured.

5.4 Deductible and Other Deductions

5.4.1 Deductible

The deductible stated in the Policy Document is deducted from compensated expenses.

5.4.2 Impact of Individual Acts

The Insured must demand compensation for lawyer's fees and legal costs from the opposing party in the legal proceedings and in negotiations for a settlement. The Insurance does not cover

- 1) expenses arising from such matters and evidence which the court disregards due to a delayed presentation
- 2) expenses incurred as a result of the failure of the Insured or his/her representative to appear in court, disregarding the orders of the court, or presenting a plea which they have known or should have known to be unjustified, or expenses which they have otherwise caused by intentionally prolonging the trial, or through carelessness

- 4) expenses for legal proceedings where the Insured's demand has been left uninvestigated or rejected as outdated or premature or as having no legal basis.

The Insured is not entitled to agree on the expenses incurred for the proceedings in a manner that is binding on the Insurance Company. Any amounts paid by the Insured to his or her legal agent in the form of fees and expenses shall not be binding upon the Insurance Company when it evaluates the reasonableness of legal costs, but the legal agent's invoice shall be sent to the Insurance Company for determination of the amount of the indemnification.

5.4.3 Impact of Laws Regulating Taxation

The laws regulating taxation are taken into account in the calculation of compensation.

Value Added Tax

If the Insured can deduct the value-added tax included in the legal representative's fees or in the legal costs, the tax is deducted from the compensation. The representative's invoice should be addressed to the Insured.

5.4.4 Order of Calculating Deductions
